

State two requirements of computer programming testing.

Testing of a program should not be miscued with system implementation and testing of SDLC stages.

Testing of a program is also called debugging and its done by programmers unlike system testing phase done by Quality assurance professionals.

For debugging to take place, the programmer needs the following tools.

- a) Debugging software
- b) Compiler/code interpreter